1. Introduction

General Secretary Xi Jinping once said that "it is necessary to do a good job of higher education for the people and improve the quality of talent training in colleges and universities." As a young university student of the times, we should exert our own subjective initiative and take the responsibility of our own. In our colleges, our student group is still mainstream. Counselors and teachers are not able to manage us in all aspects. The most important thing for self-management is the management of student cadres to classmates. Therefore, how do student cadres do a good job in student work and how to balance study, work, and life may be the problem that we should seriously consider as a new generation of young people.

2. What Is A College Student Cadre

2.1. What Are the University Student Leaders

College student cadres refer to students who help counselors in colleges and universities to handle class or professional or student unions and other aspects of the student group. It includes: class student cadres, professional student cadres, student union cadres, etc. However, in my opinion, the most important student cadres are to serve students and do what they can, and the student cadres should play their exemplary role in the professional grade school, set a model for the students and set an example.

2.2. Duties of University Student Leaders

The duties of college student cadres are as follows: First, assist the counselor and teachers to do the affairs within their own duties, and be responsible for completing each task assigned by the teacher. Second, play their own role as a model in the student group, actively organize participation in various activities, complete the task of tackling difficulties, study hard, study hard, and be a new era college student with excellent academic performance, morality, intelligence, art and work.

2.3. What Student Work Can Be Done by University Student Cadres

The work that university student cadres can accomplish is as follows: First, unite and organize all the students, you can understand each classmate more in-depth, assist the counselor to manage the class, and organize class students to participate in various activities. Second, in addition to the class, the student cadres can also serve in important student organizations such as the Student Union, which can affect a wider range of colleges, schools, and other students. In the student organizations and other important student organizations, the student leaders are better. Platform and more opportunities to serve classmates.

3. The Position of Student Cadres in the Work of College Students

3.1. Student Cadres Can Play Role Models

Student cadres are excellent in the process of selection. It can be said that student cadres are the best group of students. They have performed very well in all aspects of study, work, life, etc. Through the leading role of student cadres, they can encourage student cadres to take the lead and let more acquaintances participate in various activities on campus.

3.2. Student Cadres Can Play Their Own Subjective Actions

In various student work, student cadres can play their own subjective actions, let the student cadres understand the activities that the students want to carry out through their own channels, and then design and organize the students to participate in the activities. In this way, you can give full play to your subjective actions, and you can also increase the participation rate of your students. This can highlight the important role of student cadres, allowing them to exert their abilities as much as possible, but also self-education, self-service, and self-management. [1]

3.3. Student Cadres Can Play A Role As A Link Between Teachers and Classmates

The student cadre is a competent assistant of the counselor and teacher. It can assist the teacher to complete various affairs and serve the students. The teacher can also understand the class situation through the student cadres and master the thought dynamics of each classmate. Student cadres become a bridge between teachers and classmates. All the teachers can be issued by the student cadres, and then the students can give feedback to the teachers through the student cadres. This bridge can correctly handle the teacher-student relationship.

4. How Do Student Cadres Do A Good Job in Student Work

The daily work of student cadres is very cumbersome. If a student cadre holds a number of student cadres at the same time, the daily workload of the student cadres is extremely large, and in addition to doing a good job, we also know the students. The first priority is to learn, so how do student cadres do a good job in student work? The following three consciousnesses are very important: 1. Service awareness; 2. Responsibility awareness; 3. Dedication awareness. Only when the student cadres are doing their own student work, they acquire these three kinds of consciousness, and a student cadre can do his own. student work.

4.1. Service Awareness

We know: If you want to be a student cadre, then you will experience layer selection. Only after you have experienced the selection, you are the one who has the ability. The interviewer thinks that you can do the job and you can become A student cadre. As a general example of colleges and universities, college students often hear the seniors say how good the students will be, and then encourage the students to join the student union. However, to join the student union, you must first go through the initial test, and then not be eliminated into the re-examination, stand out in the re-examination, you will be able to enter the student union organization. I have also participated in the initial test and re-examination. I also interviewed many students. I won't ask some questions. I often ask you what is the significance of joining the student union to become a student cadre? Have answers to get a better platform, have answers to get something you want, and so on. But if this question is thrown to me, the answer I will give is: to serve the students well. Although everyone has different ideas, but at the root of it, the primary task of student organizations or student middle school students is to serve classmates. If you only want to get resources through this platform, then the cart before the horse is upside down. Only the student cadres deeply leave a sense of service in their hearts, so the student cadres will really do practical things for the students. Only by eliminating this kind of utilitarianism, the student cadres can better complete the student work.

4.2. Responsibility Awareness

It is well known that a corresponding position in a position will bear a responsibility. The same student cadres also have their own responsibilities. These include: serving classmates, attending events, assisting teachers, and more. The old saying goes: "The responsibility is more important than Mount Tai." How should a student cadre deeply understand the responsibility? We know that we have recently introduced a lifelong system of construction engineering responsibility. Through this example, we can understand that today, if a house or a bridge is built, as long as the house and the bridge have any accidents within the prescribed time limit, the designer of the house or bridge will be held accountable. Then, as the backbone of the student work group, the student cadres also bear important responsibilities. If a student cadre can't keep his responsibilities in mind, the failure of the student cadre will result in an important matter of class, age, college, and school. However, this important matter will lead to a series of unimaginable consequences. Therefore, we can say that it is very important for a student cadre to understand his or her responsibilities, which is related to whether the students' own vital interests can be realized. Moreover, the cultivation of the current sense of responsibility has a good effect on understanding the various responsibilities of the student cadres, and is very beneficial to the improvement of the student cadres. In colleges and universities, only student cadres have a deep understanding of their responsibilities, so that the cadres can complete the student work. With this responsibility, the cadres can be encouraged to complete their own student work.

4.3. Dedication Awareness

As a student cadre, we must establish a sense of wholehearted service for students and have a dedication. [2] It is not difficult to know that time is fair to everyone. Everyone has limited time. There are three important things in the university: one, learning; the second, life; the third, work. To be honest, if you want to fully enable student cadres to do a good job in student work, then it is necessary to let the student cadres have a sense of dedication. For a limited time, student cadres must learn to choose, and in their own minds, they must be able to distinguish the priorities of things. Of course, when doing student work, student cadres need to sacrifice a lot of extracurricular time, and may involve student cadres a lot of time to study and have no time to take care of. For example, regular student cadres are arranged to complete the task of tackling difficult problems. The completion of this task requires time and effort; and the student cadres will be arranged to go to meetings and learn about the class during the extracurricular time. These will also cost the students. Lots of time. And if the student cadre is only utilitarian to complete the arranged things, then the student cadres will not be fully engaged in what they are doing. If you do things in order to get some benefits, then this will make the students Cadres lose their meaning and value in doing student work. Dedication may be obscured in student work. When students do student work, they are often not revealed. The opportunities for presentation are often not given to student cadres, but student cadres need to understand that they are in this position. I need to complete my own job and take on my own responsibility. Only when a student cadre does not care about his own gains and losses, when the general secretary says that "the work does not have to be in me", the student cadres will play their own role in their own jobs. Make the student work more smoothly.

5. Conclusion

New era, new journey. When student cadres are an important force in the work of college students, student cadres must have a sense of service, responsibility, and dedication in order to do a good job in their work, and they need to have a sense of gain in their work. Student cadres are flags and benchmarks. Only when the student cadres fully love their work, the student cadre can complete the student work. As a college student of the new era, we can only make our student cadres complete the work of our students, and only take up the responsibility of the times in the future.
