Keywords

University dormitory culture; Study style construction; Dormitory interpersonal relationship.

1. The Influence of Dormitory Culture on the Construction of Study Style

1.1. Impact of Dormitory Environment

Students' learning motivation is stimulated and developed in specific situations. Under certain conditions, various influences in the dormitory environment may have a certain impact on students' learning. Comfortable and elegant dormitory environment can cultivate and motivate people, and have a positive impact on students. On the contrary, if a dormitory environment with dirty, chaotic and poor sanitary conditions will affect students' learning enthusiasm and enthusiasm, and have a negative impact on students' learning.

1.2. Creating A Good Learning Atmosphere and the Influence of Dormitory Members' Behavior Habits

Students' study habits, living habits and health habits can affect each other. The positive learning style of dormitory members can drive other members to study hard and make progress. At the same time, the lazy style of members will spread to every student in the dormitory like a virus. For example, in the dormitories of a class, there will be dormitories with poor hygiene, dormitories where members often don't attend classes, and excellent dormitories such as postgraduate entrance examination dormitories, scholarship dormitories and Party member dormitories.

1.3. Influence of Dormitory Interpersonal Relationship on Learning

College Students' inexperience and immature psychological adjustment ability are their common characteristics. For students, the handling of interpersonal relationships has a direct impact on students. In the long run, the state of interpersonal relationship will affect college students' physical and mental health, and then affect their studies. When they are in a state of interpersonal tension for a long time, it will lead to their mental tension and unable to study and live normally.

1.4. Influence of Dormitory Network Culture on Study Style Construction

With the development of society and the progress of the times, personal computers are becoming more and more popular among students, and students' dormitories have increasingly become an important place for students to surf the Internet. The resulting dormitory network culture has a great impact on the students in the dormitory. In the dormitory life, the network, especially the online games, has become an important part, making some college students irrational, addicted to the network all day, unable to extricate themselves, consuming a lot of energy and time, and even affecting the normal study and life of the whole dormitory.

2. Strengthen the Construction of Dormitory Culture and Promote the Formation of Good Study Style

2.1. Optimize the Bedroom Environment and Create A Cultural Atmosphere

Neat, clean, comfortable and beautiful bedroom environment can cultivate and purify students' hearts. In the process of dormitory culture construction, we should pay attention to optimizing the dormitory environment and creating a good cultural atmosphere, so as to stimulate the students' learning enthusiasm. For example, in the process of dormitory culture construction, we can form a positive dormitory cultural atmosphere and guide students to study hard by posting famous words banners, portraits and biographies of celebrities or alumni, placing celebrity sculptures and other cultural facilities. At the same time, a column on the construction of study style can also be opened to promote the construction of study style. In addition, publicity boards can also be arranged on each floor to actively organize students to read and study in combination with reading month and other activities, and display the learning style of students through publicity boards, so as to publicize the excellent examples around students and cultivate a good atmosphere of learning and being advanced.

2.2. Improve the Dormitory Management System and Promote the Construction of Study Style

No rules, no square. In the construction of dormitory culture, we should strengthen the construction of dormitory system, guide the formation of good atmosphere in dormitory, and create a good environment for college students' learning. First of all, the system should be perfect and sound, covering all aspects of bedroom life, leaving no dead corners and no room for negative thoughts; Secondly, the system should be standardized and rationalized. Only a standardized and reasonable system can be convincing, credible, and supported and implemented by the majority of students; Third, the system should be humanized and conform to the characteristics of contemporary college students. The formulation of dormitory system should fully consider the characteristics of the majority of students, reflect the people-oriented spirit of the times, and should not be wishful thinking and cold and rigid; Finally, the implementation of system construction should be fair, just, powerful and persistent, and a long-term mechanism should be formed.

2.3. Cultivate Good Dormitory Interpersonal Relationship and Create A Good Learning Environment

College Students' dormitory interpersonal relationship is of great significance to the cultivation of a good style of study. Colleges and universities should guide college students to establish a good dormitory interpersonal relationship into the dormitory culture construction system. Firstly, we can take the interpersonal relationship education of college students as the content of Freshmen's entrance education, so as to lay a foundation for the dormitory staff to establish a good relationship; Secondly, make use of the ideological and political course platform to strengthen the education of interpersonal behavior norms and interpersonal skills, so as to enable students to establish correct interpersonal concepts and form good interpersonal habits; Third, combine interpersonal relationship with psychological counseling, encourage students to carry out peer psychological counseling, and form a self-help mechanism; Finally, give play to the exemplary leading role of student party members, student cadres and dormitory leaders, go deep into student dormitories, get close to student life, timely find and resolve interpersonal problems in dormitories, and create a dormitory interpersonal atmosphere of unity, mutual assistance, progress and tolerance.

2.4. Establish Dormitory Model and Carry Out Demonstration Education

In the process of building dormitory culture, the establishment of model dormitory can play a good role in demonstration education for the majority of students. For example, students' dormitories with more party members are listed as "Party member dormitories", those with excellent learning are listed as "excellent student dormitories", Party member service stations and sub stations are listed as "Party member service stations", and dormitory health has been well listed as "advanced dormitories in internal health", etc. In this way, it can not only play a demonstration role for other dormitories, but also play an incentive role for the listed dormitories. The listed Dormitories under the incentive will work harder, forge ahead and strive for innovative achievements. Therefore, its demonstration role will be further strengthened, forming a positive and upward virtuous circle of "you catch up with me".

2.5. Strengthen the Construction of Dormitory Network and Promote the Formation of Good Study Style

How to guide students to make correct use of the network and give full play to the positive role of the network is the key to the construction of dormitory network. Colleges and universities can follow the trend and adopt the strategy of "sparse" and "sparse" and "blocking" to give full play to the positive impact of the network on students. First of all, we should improve the hardware environment of students' Internet access, provide students with rich learning resources on the network and facilitate their learning; Secondly, strengthen the construction of campus network, build the campus network into an online learning position loved and actively participated by college students, and give positive guidance to college students; Thirdly, strengthen the monitoring of campus network, actively guide students to resist the intrusion of bad information, and persuade or punish students who play online games continuously for a long time, so as to curb the adverse impact of the network on the style of study.

3. Conclusion

The construction of study style is a long-term and complex construction process, which is the result of the joint action of many factors. Here, we only discuss the ways to promote the construction of study style by room style construction, hoping to provide some references.
